LOVE IN THE

High Desert

Central Oregon continues to draw couples who want a wedding grounded in place and shaped by the landscape. With wide skies, dense forests and a culture that celebrates makers, food and community, the region offers inviting settings. Mountain lodges, working ranches and modern event spaces each bring a different sense of Central Oregon to life, giving couples room to design a personal celebration that connects with their story.

In the following pages, High Desert Weddings shares three celebrations that beautifully reflect the breadth of what the region has to offer. At Pole Creek Ranch, one couple created a weekend centered on togetherness, good food and the ease of being surrounded by loved ones. Hoodoo Ski Area and The Suttle Lodge became the backdrop for a pair who wanted play, spontaneity and the comfort of familiar mountains. And at Juniper Preserve, a couple welcomed guests into the landscapes that shaped their life in Bend, offering a retreat-style experience from the first gathering to the beginning of life as newlyweds.

Showcasing the work of local vendors and the spirit that defines Central Oregon, these weddings highlight how setting, intention and hospitality come together. Whether you're planning as a local or dreaming of a destination weekend, let these stories guide your own approach to celebrating in Central Oregon.

JUNIPER PRESERVE

The Details

TIME OF YEAR: Summer

DESIGN THEME: Boho Modern Chic

NUMBER OF GUESTS: 200

Kalie and Zach's story began freshman year at the University of Oregon, where their friendship quickly grew into a love that carried them from college to building a life together in Los Angeles, where they now live. For Kalie, Central Oregon was already home—she was born and raised here—and it didn't take long for Zach to fall in love with Bend's spirit as well. Choosing to celebrate their wedding in Kalie's hometown meant introducing their California-native guests to the culture and landscapes of a place they both cherished.

The venue at Juniper Preserve met all of their desires. With lodging on site, guests were able to make the weekend a true retreat of golfing, lounging poolside and gathering before and after the wedding. It set the stage for a celebration that combined rustic elegance with the modern comforts of a destination event.

Creating the Magic

With McKenzie Wiggers of The Indigo Bride at the helm, the planning process was seamless. She guided each decision with care, creating space for Kalie and Zach to enjoy the experience while bringing their vision to life. Their vendor team came together through a mix of serendipity and community: High Desert Florals was discovered at an art walk, a longtime family friend, Dave Clemens, performed as DJ, and photographer Stefanie Rose's warmth and energy instantly clicked with the couple. Every detail carried a sense of familiarity and trust, infusing the day with professionalism and heart.

Special touches included moving the ceremony arch into the reception space to keep its beauty central to the evening, incorporating a custom-designed photo booth backdrop and audio guestbook by Dashoots, and having McKenzie retrieve vow books just in time for the ceremony. Each thoughtful gesture added delightful surprise to the atmosphere.

Highlight Moment

Nature gave its own show-stopping performance. The ceremony unfolded under clear skies, cocktail hour glowed in perfect light, and just as dinner was served a lightning storm rolled through, offering a dramatic backdrop before fading into a luminous sunset. Later, an after-party at the resort's Trailhead Grill extended the night with sliders, barbecue and music.

The Guest Experience

For many of Zach's California friends and family, the wedding was their first trip to Central Oregon. Staying onsite allowed guests to enjoy the venue's amenities while also experiencing the best of the region, such as floating the Deschutes River, attending concerts, and taking in the high desert sunsets. The weekend served as an introduction and celebration of Central Oregon, a place that Kalie and Zach treasure. 🌲

Cassidy & Mark

THE SUTTLE LODGE & HOODOO SKI AREA

The Details

TIME OF YEAR: Spring

DESIGN THEME: Mountain Skiing

NUMBER OF GUESTS:

100 Ceremony, 80 Overnight

WEDDING PARTY: 17

Cassidy and Mark met in Wyoming and later built their lives together in Bend. With roots stretching from Tennessee to Maupin, Oregon, Cassidy and Mark wanted their wedding to be a gathering that blended their love of the mountains with the people they love. Choosing a Central Oregon venue allowed them to showcase the landscapes and activities that have defined so many of their shared memories for their friends and family.

When a last-minute opportunity to have the reception at The Suttle Lodge & Boathouse arose, matched with an end-of-season ceremony at Hoodoo Ski Area, Cassidy and Mark knew it was the perfect fit. Fueled with spontaneous energy, they pulled together all of the wedding details in just three months, embracing the charm of a midweek, off-season event. Hoodoo offered the playful spirit of a smaller mountain, while The Suttle Lodge gave their guests a comfortable place to gather and stay. The couple even skied on their wedding day, easing into the festivities in a way that felt true.

Creating the Magic

Planning while balancing schedules meant Cassidy and Mark leaned on their community. Their planner, Kelsey Doyle of The Indigo Bride, helped them stay calm while orchestrating details, and Anne Wilson at The Suttle Lodge brought joy to coordinating onsite activities. Taking on the challenge of shooting the bride and groom on skis, photographer Julia Duke captured breathtaking images. Vendors such as Doug Richie at Hoodoo Ski Area and Andrew George of WillieBurger infused enthusiasm and flavor into the day, while Hair & Makeup by Tanya—run by one of Cassidy’s closest friends—added a personal touch. Each contribution reflected both professionalism and heart, creating an atmosphere of warmth and connection.

Highlight Moment

The ski-in ceremony was an unforgettable scene, capturing Cassidy and Mark's love for winter. From fresh mountain snow and cozy lodge meals to the high-energy dance party led by local band Party in the Back, the day felt alive from start to finish. Celebrating their love in the very place where they had made so many memories added a depth that couldn't be replicated elsewhere.

The Guest Experience

Guests traveled from Tennessee, Pennsylvania, New York, Wyoming and beyond to celebrate. For many, it was a true mountain adventure, skiing one day and relaxing in sunshine by the lake the next. Many stayed in cabins at The Suttle Lodge, enjoying time by the water or exploring Sisters, Tumalo and Bend while soaking in the novelty of experiencing Central Oregon's alpine beauty. The setting allowed for shared laughter, outdoor fun and moments of quiet retreat, leaving the newlyweds and their friends and family with memories they'll carry well beyond the weekend. 🏔️

LOCAL LOVE AT POLE CREEK RANCH

The Details

TIME OF YEAR: September | DESIGN THEME:
Bold, Bright and Undone | NUMBER OF GUESTS: 135

Lauren and Cody's love story began in Mammoth Lakes, California, during the height of the pandemic, a meeting that culminated in a Central Oregon wedding rooted in connection and a whimsical ease. After moving to Bend a few years before their wedding and both working at Mt. Bachelor, the couple chose Pole Creek Ranch as the perfect place to host their family and friends. With mountain views, a forest setting and ponds, the venue offered an intimate yet expansive spot for the celebration they envisioned—something effortless, bold and full of heart. It was important to them that the space felt personal for the weekend, and the ability to fully rent the property and its two homes allowed them to settle in from Thursday through Sunday. The simplicity of the lodge and the beauty of the grounds satisfied their wish for a celebration focused on friends and family.

Creating the Magic

Expecting their first child while planning the wedding and hoping to maintain a calm, stress-free pace, Lauren and Cody turned to Kelsey Doyle of The Indigo Bride to bring their vision to life with her confident guidance. Kelsey had worked with the Pole Creek Ranch team many times before and understood the logistics of transforming the property into an integrated indoor-outdoor experience. Together, they curated a vendor team that invited a natural flow to the weekend. The family-friendly welcome party set the tone with its El Sancho tacos, craft margaritas and custom shot glasses celebrating the couple's California roots.

For the ceremony, low benches and ground-level florals offered a vantage point to view the Cascade Range. Bold yet undone florals from Posie Shoppe added beautiful texture throughout the day, while photographer Alex Elise captured images that felt candid and intimate. Desserts from Nancy P's Cafe and Bakery, a beloved spot Lauren frequented during pregnancy, provided a culinary highlight of the night with carrot cake, almond croissants and lemon bars offered in lieu of traditional cake. The clear tent with cathedral lighting created a luminous showpiece well into the evening.

Highlight Moment

The celebration was filled with moments that reflected Lauren and Cody's life, community and joy. Their 7-month-old son, Jones, was part of the ceremony and there was no wedding party, just family surrounding them. One of Lauren's favorite memories was getting ready with her sister, her closest friends and their babies. The reception included a full 2000s hip hop dance party and fresh pizza from Swig & Stone's mobile kitchen. With everyone satiated, happy and under the skies of perfect fall weather, the entire weekend felt charmed.

The Guest Experience

For most guests, the wedding was an introduction to Sisters and Central Oregon. Many arrived early, joining the couple at The Barn in Sisters to kick off the weekend before exploring the McKenzie River, waterfalls, local bakeries and nearby golf courses. Some stayed at Juniper Preserve or Brasada Ranch. The weekend also included a Friday morning golf scramble at Black Butte Ranch, where 50 guests competed in a playful tournament. Winners took home Pole Creek Ranch bourbon and branded trucker hats. With more than 35 babies and children attending the welcome party and rehearsal dinner, the weekend became a rare chance for families to gather, play and reconnect. Guests visited the animals at Pole Creek Ranch, wandered the property and fully embraced the relaxed tempo. For the many new parents in attendance, seeing their children together for the first time became a treasured part of the celebration. Throughout the weekend Lauren and Cody's intention manifested into a weekend without excess, centered on love, community and confirmed the gift of being together. 🍷

TWO PINES

WEDDING PLANNING & DESIGN

www.twopinesevents.com

CURATING YOUR
Dream Team

A wedding is built by many hands, a collective of specialists whose work shapes the day as much as the setting itself. The process of choosing your dream team is about finding voices that harmonize with your own—florists who see color as you do, musicians who understand the mood you want, bakers who create flavor to fit your celebration. Central Oregon offers a wealth of such talent, but the key is balance: set budgets early, secure the vendors most essential to your vision and read every agreement with care. Above all, select collaborators who leave you feeling understood.

In the pages ahead, discover local makers who can help bring it all together. Entrusting the right team allows you to be fully present for the moments that matter most. 17

The Art of the Plan

The true beauty of your wedding day lies in being completely present, making planners and coordinators essential guides. They refine every detail, from curating a roster of vendors to steering through the maze of wedding dos and don'ts. Planners handle all aspects of the day, balancing family dynamics and financial priorities with tact. The result is a tailored celebration that is special to your partnership. For couples already underway with the process, a coordinator can step in as a final-act director, bringing your plans to a flawless finish. Local planners and coordinators know the high desert intimately, with insight into its hidden gems and natural challenges ensuring a celebration as unforgettable as Central Oregon itself. Their role is to anticipate needs you may not even see, transforming potential bumps in the road into a seamless operation. Begin with honest conversations to find someone who understands your values. With their expertise, you'll move through your day without worry, free to embrace every moment. H&W

Through the Lens

Wedding photography and videography continue to evolve as a form of storytelling that defines how a celebration is remembered. Today's couples look for imagery that captures the grandeur of the day, as well as the intimate gestures—the fleeting expressions and atmosphere of a once-in-a-lifetime occasion. The editorial eye can transform a ceremony into a spread fit for a magazine, while documentary-style coverage lends an authenticity that speaks to the tenderness of the day. Fine art photography remains a way to elevate the wedding into a museum-worthy collection. Film photography continues its revival for couples drawn to romance and vintage texture. Videography brings vows to life, preserving the words spoken and the sentiment of the day's bustle, with Super 8 offering a nostalgic lens that feels cinematic and deeply personal. With a wide spectrum of artists available in the high desert, your task is to choose a team whose lens resonates with your own. In their hands, your wedding becomes a work of art designed to endure retelling for generations.

Love in Bloom

There may be no wedding accessory as universally adored as florals. Elegant, ephemeral by nature and always aligned with the season, florals declare love's magnificence with a language all their own. Even the simplest arrangement becomes a defining gesture, distinct to every couple's style. Flowers echo your venue, color palette and taste. Select blooms in accordance with the time of year, revealing a selection that is true to the essence of the season.

Florals converse with their backdrop, so consider the natural features of your venue and let design heighten the atmosphere. The high desert's florists are fluent in the language of Central Oregon blooms, knowing which florals thrive when and how best to complement the region's landscapes. As you choose your florist, study their artistry, share your vision and explore ways to weave personal meaning into each arrangement. Your selections may be guided by a curated palette or the symbolism of specific blossoms. Welcome these floral artists into your planning and watch as your wedding space transforms into a living garden in which to celebrate the beauty of your union. 🌿

Wedding Style

The character of your wedding day is reflected in the people who surround you and how you welcome them. A dress code is an exciting, creative decision—an extension of the invitation that allows guests to step into the narrative of your story. How they choose to rise to the occasion is a living expression of your union. Your own attire, as a couple, becomes the pinnacle of it all. What declaration will your outfitting make?

From gowns to second looks, wedding style can be effortlessly chic and carry you into the night or shift with each chapter of the day. This is perhaps the most intimate detail of the entire occasion. Before finalizing your look, consider the artistry of custom tailoring. Central Oregon ateliers and boutiques offer options that range from classic sophistication to one-of-a-kind vintage finds. Allow your personal style to lead you. For your guests, provide guidance that encourages them to honor the heart of your marriage. Above all, embrace the style of your wedding with confidence and let your love story radiate through the distinctive spirit of the day's attire.

Setting the Scene

The design of your wedding lives in the details, and lighting is where the venue truly comes alive. Think of it as the fluid and endlessly customizable element that shapes the character of the evening.

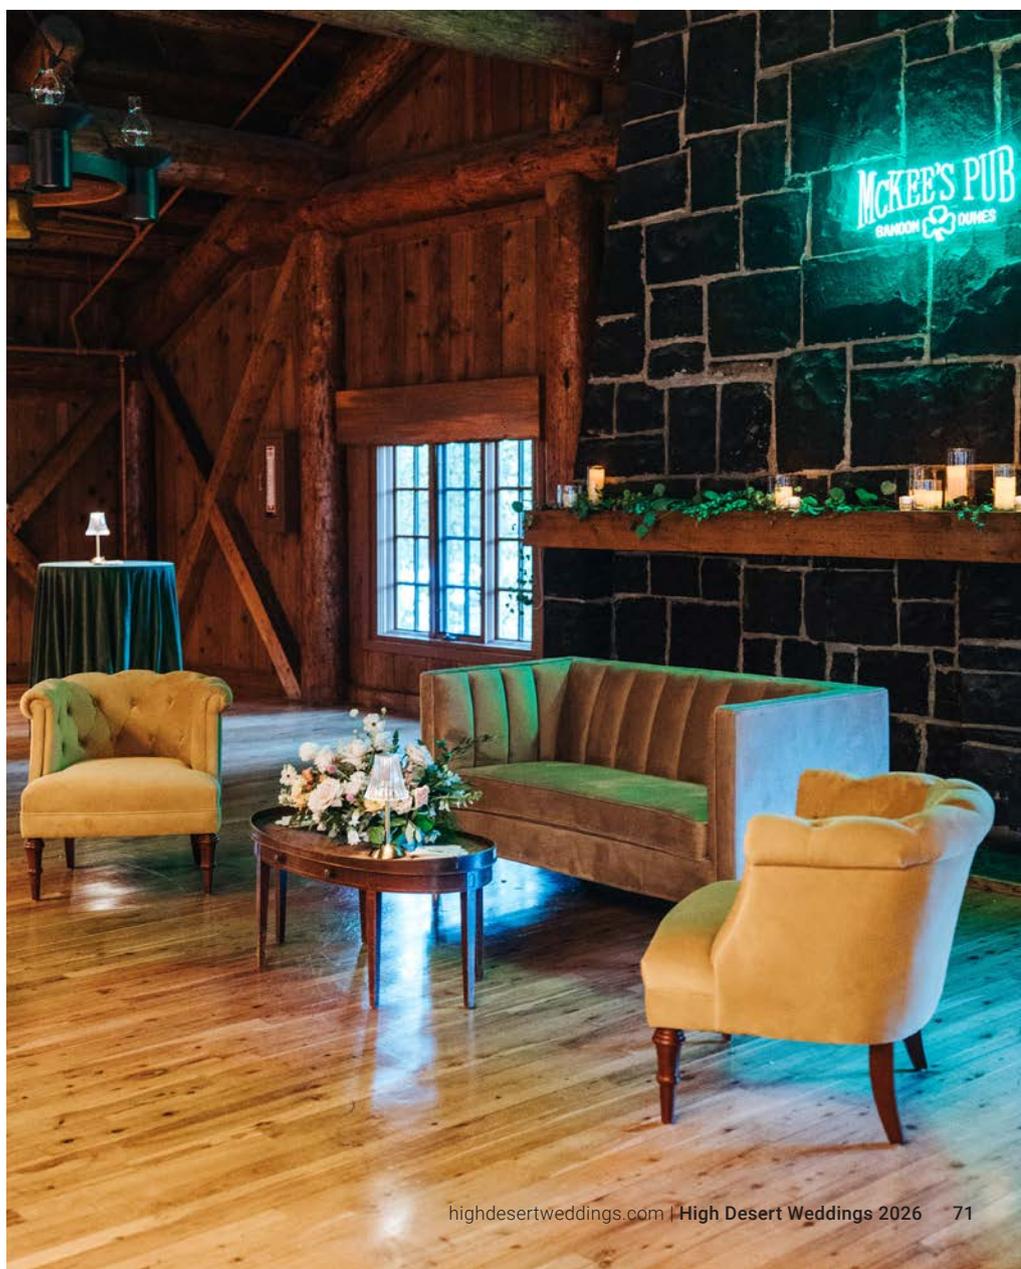

Couples have room to lean into contrast: the quiet drama of candlelit tablescapes paired with sculptural candelabras, or the playful shimmer of string lights casting a glow across high desert skies. For those drawn to a maximalist approach, vibrant washes of color and layered textures bring elevated energy to the celebration, while a softer palette of neutrals and warm tones lends elegant romance.

As the sun gives way to the moon, reflect on the cadence you'd like to arrange for the evening. Will your guests be drawn into an intimate glimmer or swept onto the dance floor by a burst of color? The goal is to move smoothly from one mood to the next.

Lighting and decor prepare the atmosphere for guests and create the canvas for every photograph and video. Share your decor expectations and mood boards with your creative team, then entrust Central Oregon's design experts to shape the glow. The wedding of your dreams awaits. 📸

Soundtracks for a Lifetime

From the sentimental first dance to the fun that follows on the dance floor, music sets the tone for your celebration. When choosing between live performers and a DJ, it's essential to consider the atmosphere you want to build. Live music brings organic vibrancy, while a skilled DJ can curate a personalized journey that captures your most cherished memories. Be sure to evaluate the acoustics of your venue and consult with the venue manager to determine the best musical approach for the space.

Intentional track selections are exciting ways to honor shared moments with friends and family. DJs are experts at blending genres and eras, so your selections, no matter how diverse in sound, seamlessly tell your story. Envision the emotions you want to inspire throughout your wedding day, selecting romantic ceremony melodies, party-starting reception tracks or a little of both. Get everyone on the dance floor with a well-rounded playlist. Central Oregon is filled with talented musicians and DJs who specialize in custom-designed events. High Desert Weddings provides a recommended list of local artists who bring their own musical touch to wedding entertainment while working with you thoughtfully to compose the perfect wedding day vibe for you and your partner.
